3. Speak slowly and clearly as it helps with the recording.

Email received from Leen VanGinckel requesting approval of placing an “earthcache” in Grace Lord Park

Hello,
(thank you for forwarding below to the relevant colleague)

hope you and your family are doing fine in these crazy times.
I would like to ask you a question related to Grace Lord park (more specific to the foot trail that run along the river gorge to the waterfall).

The question relate to our hobby “geocaching” - geocaching is an outdoor game that allows people as an individual or a family to discover new places. Maybe you have heard about it before - if not you can find more information here. https://www.geocaching.com/blog/2018/03/what-is-geocaching/ Geocaching is well arranged and regulated, via the central site geocaching.com and official apps that people can put on their smart phone. For new geocaches to be put out, there is a strict review process in place which includes asking for permission of the land owner which is what I want to do now 😊

Our question: We would like to place an "earthcache": that means that in our online community (website geocaching.com) we tell about a place, and geocachers can get a "point" by coming to the area and answer a few questions about a geologic phenomenon (in this case the pothole in the gorge that one can easily observe from the trail).
I estimate that this would mean that about 10 to 20 people might come “on purpose” to the area to explore and answer this question. There is nothing placed physically, it’s about visiting and answer a few easy questions about observations on the spot! For this we would need permission from you (or a different party in case that would not be in your responsibility). Given the Covid-19 crisis we would not officially "publish" the geocache before that whole situation has cleared up of course (might still take a while...).

We are Leen and Roel, our geocaching nickname is Tipsy_1. We have found more than 28.000 geocaches across the globe (mostly in Europe (where we lived until a year ago) and in the US). We have also already placed more than 400 geocaches so we are pretty passionate about our hobby geocaching 😊. We currently reside in New Jersey but travel a lot across all the states on the US east coast.

Our recent trips brought us to Boonton where we were really happily surprised with the beauty of the area around the waterfall. It is such a great place to admire the forces of nature and geology, so decided we would like to bring this spot to the attention of geocachers by marking it an "earthcache", meaning we ask people to make a stop here (place is well equipped for that with parking and boardwalk), admire the falls and answer some questions to get a learning experience.

We hope you will take our request to approve this geocache into consideration. There will not be any harm to the nature, as geocachers just use the already existing facilities like any other “tourist” and we did not place anything physical. The only difference might be that there will be a few more people stopping in Boonton 😊 (but will not be massive).

Thank you for considering our request, and hopefully approving it.
If you would have any specific remarks or concerns that we should ask to our geocaching listing, feel free to let us know.

Kind regards,
Leen Van Ginckel & Roel Verlot
